

I believe that the current do not call list laws stay as they are written. This list was created for public privacy and I do not believe it should be changed to allow certain callers to call my home. It is my choice to do business with one company or another or shop where I want - I should not be interrupted in my home on my personal time to be asked to change my credit card company, change my bank, etc.

I feel strongly that telemarketing is an invasion of my privacy and my time. I have never in my life changed my spending habits based on a telemarketing call. They are not necessary in today's society with the other media outlets available for advertising services or offering services to potential customers.

My life has been happier without being interrupted constantly by a ringing phone or a pushy salesperson!!!

I believe that by allowing a few businesses or types of businesses to call someone on the list will just enable more companies to ask for the legislation to be changed yet again to allow them to call.
